A NATIONAL RECOGNITION SCHOOL – 1985

U.S. Department of Education’s National Secondary School Recognition Program

COMMUNITY

The Parkway School District is 68.5 square miles in suburban West St. Louis County with primarily college educated residents of professional, technical or managerial occupations. The school population is very diverse with forty different countries represented and twenty-six languages spoken. The district has four high schools and one non-traditional high school of choice. Parkway North High encourages its students to think critically, appreciate differences, accept responsibility, and become life-long learners.
